USPA NEWS - Pakistan’s Field Marshal Syed Asim Munir Saves Iran, The USA & The World from Destruction

Pakistan’s Field Marshal Syed Asim Munir has achieved something unprecedented in modern history, he has saved Iran, The United States of America and the world from destruction, calamity, mayhem of World War 3. There has never been a person, institution or country in history, that has accomplished what Pakistan’s military commander-in-chief has achieved through his role in the international peace efforts, which has saved the world from destruction, said Shazada Hayat, President UICF (UK) and international community welfare campaigner.

Field Marshal Syed Asim Munir played a central role in the peace negotiations between Iran and the United States. Through mediation and shuttle diplomacy, Pakistan helped secure an initial ceasefire, which ultimately led to a peace treaty and brought an end to 15 weeks of hostilities between the two countries.

The conflict between Iran and the United States threatened to escalate into a much wider war, raising fears of a possible Third World War. The efforts of Field Marshal Syed Asim Munir are remarkable and phenomenal. There has not been and powers including the United Nations, the European Union, NATO, China, the Far East and Middle East who were able to achieve such a monumental and historic breakthrough and achievement.

The world has breathed a sigh of relief following the end of the conflict, which had already caused widespread destruction, heavy loss of life and billions of dollars in economic damage. The impact on Iran, the United States and the global economy has been catastrophic, with markets and industries around the world suffering the consequences of the prolonged conflict.
Shazada Hayat said, If this war between the USA and Iran had continued and spiralled out of control, the consequences could have been disastrous for the world.

The loss of life would have been unimaginable and the economic impact on the entire world beyond comprehension. Global populations would have suffered for decades and many countries would have struggled to recover from the devastation for a long time to come.

Pakistan’s military commander-in-chief has emerged not only as a serving military leader, but also as a political and diplomatic statesman. This historic achievement has never before been witnessed, with a serving military commander taking on such a prominent role in international diplomacy on the world stage.

The role of DG ISI Lt. Gen. Asim Malik, Interior Minister Mohsin Naqvi and Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif, has been outstanding throughout the peace process.
Shazada Hayat went on to say, Leaders from around the world, think tanks, non-governmental organisations and members of the public are urging the Nobel Peace Prize Committee to recognise Field Marshal Syed Asim Munir's efforts. Prime ministers around the world such as the Italian Prime Minister Georgia Maloni is at the forefront of calling on the Nobel Peace Prize Committee to honour Pakistan’s Field Marshal Syed Asim Munir. She has stated “Pakistan’s military leader demonstrated exceptional political and diplomatic skills through mediation and negotiations, that brought Iran and the United States together for peaceful dialogue, and the end to a conflict between them which could have escalated into World War 3.”

Pakistan’s intervention helped prevent further loss of life and protected the Middle East from greater destruction. Millon’s of lives have potentially been saved and the global economy has been rescued from further spiralling out of control and into austerity. The successful achievement of a ceasefire, de-escalation and eventually a peace treaty represented a monumental milestone.

Field Marshal Syed Asim Munir has caved his name and place in history as one of the world's leading military commanders in chief who has also emerged as a world outstanding diplomatic and political statesmen to achieve peace for the world. Pakistan's military commander in chief's monumental efforts has brought about an end to the conflict and war between The USA and Iran. Iran, The United States, The Middle East and the entire world owes a huge debt to Pakistan's military commander in chief.
There is no one in history who deserves the Nobel Peace Prize more for saving humanity from destruction, calamity and catastrophe, by everting World War 3, than Field Marshal Syed Asim Munir, who has emerged not only as Pakistan's military commander-in-chief, but also as a world diplomatic and political statesman who has managed to save the world from destruction.
